Fast magic-angle spinning, coupled with $1H$ detection is a powerful method to improve spectral resolution and signal to noise in solid-state NMR spectra. Fearless Toys Ltd is raising funds for LIMBO The Magical Top That Spins For Hours! on Kickstarter! LIMBO is a smart, self-balancing electric.

Spin a little magic for yourself, and download a free sample of the course: are ready to live your most magical life, then you are ready to start Spinning Gold. In nuclear magnetic resonance, magic-angle spinning (MAS) is a technique often used to perform experiments in solid-state NMR spectroscopy and, more. Make a pen balance on its point and spin “ using the power of magnetism! This is a fun science experiment for kids. Magic Spinning Pen - A Magnet Science. LIMBO is a smart, self-balancing electric gyro, disguised as a beautiful CNC machined top that spins for hours “ even set a Guinness world record for longest .

Magic angle spinning (MAS) is commonly used in nuclear magnetic resonance of solids to improve spectral resolution. Rather than using. This is utterly astonishing. At your command the nut on the bolt comes to life and starts to spin, round and round until it falls off the bolt. What! Completely. Magic-angle spinning fails to eliminate the effect of dipolar coupling on the spectrum of a spin- $1/2$ nucleus. (e.g., ^{13}C) coupled to a quadrupolar nucleus (e.g.
